

SUK, Mumbai University win all-India qawwali contest

TOI

Kolhapur: The Shivaji University, Kolhapur (SUK) and University of Mumbai jointly won the third edition of All-India Inter-University National Qawwali competition held on the SUK campus.

The competition, held on October 22 and 23, also saw unique results with all the eight participating teams finding their names among the winners.

According to varsity's statement, Maharshi Dayanand University (Rohtak, Haryana), Lovely Professional University (Phagwara, Punjab) and Banasthali Vidyapith (Rajasthan) jointly won the second prize.

The third prize was divided between Dr Hari Singh Gour University (Sagar, Madhya Pradesh), Sant Gadge Baba Amravati University (Amravati) and Swami Ramanand Teerth Marathwada University.

Before the prize distribution ceremony, three teams — SUK, Banasthali Vidyapith and University of Mumbai — performed for the audience amid rousing response. RV Gurav, director of SUK students' welfare, said all the participant teams gave positive feedback.

He added that since the competition is in its nascent stage all the participants need to be cheered for their efforts. "The prizes they have won are on their merit and we are proud of all of the teams," Gurav said, adding that the way audience responded to the event was also a surprising factor.

"With the venue being houseful, the audience proved that excellent content and performances should not go unnoticed," he said.

Swapnil Patil, a student, said the qawwali competition gave them the chance to witness something new in the city after so many years.

Notably, the SUK's team had won the competition last year as well when it was organised in Mumbai. This year, as many as 10 teams had participated, but due to the examinations, two teams withdrew from the competition at the last minute.

letter," the circular added.

Kolhapur: The Shivaji University, Kolhapur (SUK) from this winter semester examination has decided to send formal appointment letter to the internal and external senior supervisors of their respective colleges via email.

According to a circular dated October 22, the university said that it usually sends formal appointment letter via post to the respective supervisors' colleges where they are appointed for exam duties.

"However, many a times the supervisors complain of not receiving the letters, eventually putting the burden on the examination system. Now to avoid this, the letters will be directly sent on the emails of the respective college's email address," the circular said.

"The principals of such colleges will have to ensure that the respective supervisors get their appointment

Last month, in a circular on September 21, director of board of examinations and evaluation Mahesh Kakade had said that several colleges failed to respond to their earlier circular and did not send the names of the senior supervisors and that was creating issues for the upcoming semester exams.

The official then had asked for a meeting with the principals or the head of the departments about appointing the supervisors for the exam duties, so that the last-minute chaos is avoided. The appointed senior supervisors' list was asked to be submitted to the exam department at the earliest.

It should be noted that the varsity had faced issues related to senior supervisor appointments in the winter 2016 semester exam. From then, the varsity had taken various measures to increase the participation of the said authorities.
